public the value of his shares would triple. Further, he initially purchased the Tambora shares as a gift to the church's Pastor for her retirement. Later, D.A. changed his mind and he requested that he receive the shares.

15. Prior to D.A.'s purchase of the Tambora shares, I reviewed with him his finances. The review showed that D.A., a well-educated, retired airline pilot, was an accredited investor. The Tambora stock was purchased in the November to December 2004 time period. He had the opportunity to review information about Tambora and to ask any questions.

16. Approximately four to six months after the purchase, D.A. asked me if he could return the shares and receive a refund of his money. I told him that the Board of Directors made such decisions. I suggested that he make his request in writing, and I would present his request to the Board of Directors. He never provided a written request for a refund to me. I assumed he had decided to keep the Tambora shares.

Further Affiant sayeth naught.
